$75,000 Blaze Hits Hartman Electric Company

4 Firemen Hurt In 3-Hour Fight

Blaze, First Discovered In Furnace Room, Quickly Envelops Structure; Army, Navy to Launch Probe.

By FRED T. NORRIS

Four ice-coated firemen were injured during their eight-hour battle last night against flames which virtually destroyed the Hartman Electric company plant, Fifth and Diamond streets, at an estimated loss of $75,000 and temporarily forced 105 war workers out of employment. Firemen labored through the night as the mercury fell to six degrees above zero.

While army and navy officers this morning launched a routine inquiry into causes, R. W. Hartman, president-treasurer, announced the plant will be rebuilt as rapidly as material priorities permit and that available machinery will be moved to temporary quarters in the Ohio Textile company plant across the street and production stepped up at the firm's Lucas plant.

With the first, second and third floors of the building gutted by stubbornly spreading flames firemen kept the conflagration away from a ground-floor annex on the north side of the plant where most of the heavy machinery was installed and by flooding basement coal bins which had been ignited by falling embers prevented flames and possible explosions from damaging vaults which shielded valuable dies, tools and other equipment necessary to the manufacture of switches and other apparatus for army and navy use.

William O'Donnell, 546 Lily street, plant fireman and watchman, suffered slight burns in escaping from the blazing furnace room after baled corrugated cartons mysteriously became ignited while he was loading a stoker at 5:15 p. m., just a few minutes after the 105 employes had left the plant. O'Donnell told investigators there was no evidence of fire when he passed the bales on his way to the stoker in the rear of the basement.

Lewis F. Hartman, vice president and secretary of the firm, had left the building for his home at 344 North Townview circle, remarking afterward that he well remembered hearing O'Donnell shoveling coal into the stoker hoppers in a usual manner.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger suffered a severe scalp cut in a fall on the ice. Fireman William Carr was injured in a fall, Fireman Raymond Cline was cut by falling glass while Fireman Clarence Donnan sustained a gash on his right knee in attempting to

ASKS REPEAL

McGregor's Bill Would Abolish Tire Inspection Rule.

A resolution calling for repeal of the OPA regulation requiring periodic inspection of automobile tires had been introduced in the house of representatives today by Congressman J. Harry McGregor of the 17th district.

A Republican, Congressman McGregor represents Richland and five other counties.

He contends in his resolution that the tire inspection order is a hindrance to the war effort and involves useless expense and time. He has asked for an immediate hearing on the resolution.

The congressman was quoted as saying that more than 30,000 persons would be required to handle the reports while gasoline and tires would be used unnecessarily by drivers taking their cars to inspection depots.

DUKE'S FRIEND UNDER ARREST

Bedaux Reported Held in North Africa on Trading With Enemy Charge.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Cordell Hull today confirmed the arrest of Charles E. Bedaux, one-time friend of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor and internationally known originator of the "speed-up" system of industrial workers, in North Africa.

Bedaux, whose exact whereabouts are being kept secret for the time being, was reported to have been charged with "trading with the enemy." If convicted in a civil court, he is liable to 10 years imprisonment, a $10,000 fine and forfeiture of all property used in the offense.

Mystery surrounds the circumstances under which he arrived in French North Africa. He and his wife, the former Fern Lombard, of Grand Rapids, Mich., were arrested by the Germans in Paris only last September in the general round-up of Americans there. Up until today nothing had been heard of him publicly, especially as to why he was released by the Germans, and how he managed to reach North Africa.

Arrest of Bedaux on the grave charge of trading with the enemy climaxes an amazing career which began reputedly as a bottle-filler in a New York saloon after the turn of the century and eventually developed into a multionaire international expert on how to get more work out of industrial laborers.

He became known to the world at large in June, 1937 when ex-King Edward VIII of Great Britain married Wally Simpson in his

City Appropriations Total $661,622 With $19,291 Cut

Without materially affecting any one department, and excluding a contemplated pay increase for 200 municipal employes, city council last night adopted an appropriation ordinance allocating $661,622.72 for 1943 municipal expenses or $19,291, under the 1942 appropriation.

Principal savings were in the sinking fund appropriations showing $53,000 for retirement of bonds and $6,556.25 for interest charges as compared to corresponding allotments a year ago of $68,000 and $9,567.60.

After Russell Porch, First ward councilman and chairman of the finance committee, explained his group had no definite figures from the salary committee Fred Miller, sr., Fifth ward member and salary chairman, explained more time is necessary to adjust wage and salary increases. Indications are that final figures will be presented at the regular Feb. 2 session.

When the appropriation measure failed to include funds for repair of the North Lake park dam Clifford Knarr, Third ward councilman, called for a "gentleman's agreement" designed to provide funds when the park commission regularly requests such action.

Mystery surrounds the disappearance of letters which Ed Wylie, park commission president, explained he mailed letters cover-

HITS CENSORS

Willkie Says 'Expert' Control Fine Till You Know Experts.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, appealing for a minimum of censorship during a war for freedom, warned yesterday against a "growing tendency" toward greater control and asked for a maximum of free expression.

"Don't try to lead us too much, don't try to censor us too much, let us be free while we fight for freedom," Willkie said at a book and author luncheon.

He said he realized there must be military censorship and "some circumspection" in publication of news during a war period, but declared that the theory of leaving the matter to the experts was a fine doctrine—"until you know some of the experts."

DOUBT OHIO TIME CHANGE

Some Assembly Members Set To Go Against Voters, Fear 'Unpatriotic' Charge.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The house of the 95th general assembly today approved a request to Donald Nelson, War Production board chief, to "appear or appoint an accredited representative to appear" before a legislative committee to explain his opposition to a time change in Ohio.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Prospects of the Ohio legislature shifting Ohio from eastern to central wartime appeared doubtful today despite the heavy sentiment indicated by introduction of 18 bills to effect a change.

The outlook is predicated on the war production board adhering to its recommendation that retention of the present time schedule is essential to the war effort. A shift from eastern to central wartime would give the state the same time schedule it had before the war.

While citizens dissatisfied with the present arrangement are putting considerable pressure on the legislature, some members privately say this may be one

First Contracts Awarded for Building Air Supply Depot

First contracts have been let for an army air force supply depot in Richland county north of Mansfield to be known as the Mansfield Air Force Supply depot, the army revealed today.

Details as to size of the project were not revealed, although the depot is expected to cover "several hundred" acres and employ "several hundred" people, chiefly civilians.

A large part of them are expected to make their homes in Mansfield, and inquiries have been under way for some time concerning living quarters here.

The contracts let, Capt. Glen E. Shaw of the army engineer corps, are for grading, drainage and roads and for construction of a railroad siding. Capt. Shaw said both contracts had been awarded to the J. C. O'Connor company of Fort Wayne, Ind., low bidder, but declined to reveal what railroad line would be built into the depot site. He also declined to say exactly where the depot would be located, although he admitted it would be near Route 61 which runs north from Shelby.

Reports have been current for some time that a sizeable army project would be located in this area, but today's announcement was the first official statement. Capt. Shaw asserted that negotiations for the land in question have not yet been completed, although preliminary contracts have been let.

A temporary office has been set up by the engineers in the Shelby postoffice. Work on the depot, which will house air force supplies, is expected to start in the near future.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Three measures which would remove the sales tax from restaurant meals and prescription medicines, as requested in Governor Bricker's inaugural address, were thrown into the legislative hopper of the 95th general assembly.

The bills were drawn under administration sponsorship and were supervised by Chairman Hugh Jenkins of the state board of tax appeals.

AFTER TRAITORS

U. S. Reported Ready to Indict Six Who Broadcast For Axis.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The justice department soon will indict for treason six Americans who are broadcasting regularly from Germany and Italy, it was learned today.

They are Constance Drexel, Fred Kaltenbach, Douglas Chandler, Jane Anderson, Ezra Pound and Robert H. Best who has said he would be a presidential candidate. They may never be brought to trial, but the indictment will warn them against trying to come back to the United States.

A spokesman for the justice department admitted that the indictments are being considered. It was learned that one of the delays thus far has been whether legally the six have committed acts of treason through broadcasts in contrast to overt acts. Should the six ever be tried, the supreme court would have to decide that point.

CLOSE IN ON STALINGRAD SIEGE ARMY

Smash Through Outskirts of Volga Metropolis After Night of Battle.

AIR BLOWS HIT AXIS

U. S. Warplanes Destroy 34 Enemy Aircraft on Ground In Africa.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(CP)—A smashing Allied aerial offensive that has destroyed or damaged 51 Axis planes in 24 hours indicated today that the United Nations were approaching the hour when they would start the big push to drive the enemy out of North Africa.

(By Associated Press)

Red army troops, gouging deeper into the remnants of 22 German divisions trapped before Stalingrad, were officially reported to have smashed through to the western outskirts of the long-besieged Volga metropolis today after a night of violent battle in courtyards, buildings and streets.

"The enemy launched six counter-attacks, one after the other," Soviet headquarters announced.

"Red army men repulsed all the Hitlerite counter-attacks and wiped out about a battalion of German infantry."

Now tightly pocketed in the narrow Don-Volga corridor, Hitler's armies began their costly and ill-fated siege of Stalingrad 141 days ago.

Elsewhere in the global war, United Nations airmen delivered a series of tempestuous blows to the Axis in attacks ranging from far-off Burma and New Guinea to North Africa.

Allied headquarters in North Africa reported U. S. warplanes destroyed 34 Nazi aircraft in the air and on the ground yesterday in an attack on the Castel Benito airfield, 10 miles south of Tripoli.

A communique said American Flying Fortresses smashed 20 planes on the ground and shot down 14 others in a 75-mile running battle.

In Tunisia, Italian headquarters declared that Axis forces "during fighting which is still in progress" has destroyed 14 Allied tanks, two armored cars and numerous vehicles. The scene of the action was not disclosed.

On the Russian front, indications that the Red armies may have launched a major new offensive in the north were reflected in a report by German military quarters that heavy fighting had spread to the sector between Lake Ilmen and the Leningrad-Lake Ladoga region.

These quarters said Russian at-

Pound Japs From Air, on Land Over Wide Pacific Area

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The navy announced today that for the first time in a month a lone Japanese plane raided the U. S. airfield on Guadalcanal while American bombers again blasted the enemy base on New Georgia and U. S. ground forces continued their offensive on the American-held Solomons island.

(By Associated Press)

Allied warplanes sweeping the far Pacific skies from Burma to the South seas were reported hitting the Japanese on a rising scale today, and in land fighting Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced "further gains" against trapped enemy forces on the Papuan beach in New Guinea.

Survivors of a Japanese invasion army originally estimated at 15,000 troops were pictured as fighting the last stages of a losing battle, with American and Australian soldiers hacking deeper

Tells Industrial Officials Plants Must Be Blacked-Out

Mansfield industries will be compelled to comply with War and Navy department blackout regulations calling for total invisibility from surface or air and the maintenance of trained defense crews on every shift or be subjected to repeated tests until the required efficiency is attained.

This information, somewhat in the form of an ultimatum, was handed out yesterday by Ralph H. Stone, Ohio director of civilian defense, at a luncheon conference of plant protection officers in Westinghouse cafeteria and auditorium.

Protection directors pledged a more intensive effort to meet requirements while C. L. VanDerau, Westinghouse manager of manufacturing, outlined the accomplishments at his factory and assured Stone and Major Charles Miller, liaison officer for the Fifth Service command, that all industrial leaders of Mansfield will gladly comply when properly instructed.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, civilian defense coordinator, will speak before a Friday night meeting of the Mansfield Manufacturers club.

THE BOY FROM MAINE

CHAPTER I

We might look at him first as he was in 1931. He was led Hobey Hadley; and at that particular time it was a ne in neon lights above the midnight entrance of the Club ropa, on Seventh avenue. It was one of several names, itten in red—there was the torch singer, there was the ce team, there was Tito Sarlo and his orchestra, and re was Hobey Hadley, lower down, in smaller letters. ere were also "12 Other Specialties 12," and then there s a giant "and," and there was "Bonnie Roberts," on a all by herself. This was the last time, and by far the gest lettering of all. She was Hobey's Bonnie Roberts, he had managed that.

Nightly at 11:30, Hobey Hadley came to work, arriving always taxicab, and in a hurry. Eleven thirty was not late, but you ld have supposed it was. He had acquired the hurrying habit ugh long living in New York. Before his taxicab achieved the , he had the door open, and he was on the pavement while the els still moved. He waved a dollar bill, and if the fare was what ould be—thirty cents from his apartment—he said, 'Give me a dollar." He stood waiting for it, with his hand out; sometimes his fingers snapping. A dark young man, not short, not tall, a cleft chin and sea-blue eyes, wearing a polo coat over his er clothes, and a slouch hat.

He was thirty that winter. He had been born in the spring of year 1900. All subsequent occurrences considered, it was some- of a miracle that he looked ger than his age, but still he He got along without make- n the spotlight. He had a of health, and a winter tan, although you knew that this be a sun-lamp tan, the fact ined that he looked unusual- wholesome, for a master of monies.

s manner was a little differ- too; and that was another . That was the thing that him popular by night and him well. He seemed in- ous, which pleased the wom- f his audience. He seemed le awkward, which disarmed nen. The degree of his self- ance was exactly right; it a trifle on the minus side, as did not quite expect but hoped that you would like ok," he said, much more ntly. "Wait a minute, now," e reached backward into mparative obscurity behind potlight and produced a d child with dimpled knees bright mouth and a gay of hair and sunburst eye- made of black wire and or your inspection.

v about this?" he said, one eyebrow meaningly at This is little Denise Dixon, out of New Orleans." He ed her, showing you all and all curves He had rn around for you. He had ile for you. "Hm'mmm?" ed then. That "Hm'mmm?" mous.

Little Denise Dixon would do an able tap dance for you and for Hobey Hadley Hobey would stand aside, and wait, and watch intently. The circle of the spotlight would be full on Denise Dixon's gleaming skin, her prancing curls, her shrunken satin breeches, her excited feet in stubby silver shoes tied up with bows. The orchestra would work for her; the spotlight would contain her solely, and precisely, every second; and there was certainly no reason why you should be conscious all the while of Hobey in the background, but you were. Somehow you always were. Your eyes reverted to him often, for no reason.

Nothing dismayed him. He was ready for whatever happened—and all sorts of things could happen at the Club Europa, and did, upon occasion. People succumbed to alcohol, and couples quarreled out loud, and dancers slipped and fell, and lights went out, and cigarets ignited tablecloths, and waiters carrying trays collided with a mighty crash, and singers lost their voices, and little girls had stage fright, and autograph-hunters mobbed celebrities before they could sit down, and customers were sick before they could get anywhere, and the cops came and stood around and frightened everybody, and tables were overturned and women slapped each other's faces, and drunken college boys threw bottles at effeminate performers, and convention delegates made wavering passes at the little girls, and Hobey Hadley always said the one right thing, whatever it might be, and said it instantly, and said it comically if possible.

So he was worth the salary his employer paid him, which was top for what he did, or almost top. It was two hundred and fifty a week, and it still awed him secretly. He had two radio-announcing jobs, and those increased his income; and now and then there were small royalties from merry little songs for which he wrote the lyrics, and which he himself first introduced. In many ways he had been very lucky, and he knew it.

Not in other ways, though. There was, for instance, Bonnie. And there was always Rosalie, whom he had lost.

There is a great deal to be told, and much of it goes further back than anyone on Broadway—even the columnist, even the most omniscient of them—knew or guessed. This was supposed to be a new affair, this Bonnie Roberts-Hobey Hadley one. It was not new, even as such. It had begun four years before. And it was not a new acquaintance, by a lifetime.

The first time he ever saw her, she was two days old, and lying asleep in a gray muff of blankets in a wooden box that fancy crackers had been shipped in. The box was on the kitchen table at the Roberts' when he went over with a cup to borrow some cornstarch for his mother, and to ask how Mrs. Roberts was. Hobey was nine years old that winter—nearly ten—to Bonnie's two days. He remembered looking in at her, because her brothers told him to She looked like all babies. He had seen many.

"What is it, a girl?" he asked, in order to say somthing; and Mrs. Roberts, who was up and cooking in three layers of flannel nightgowns and a flannel wrapper, and a gingham apron, and a mackinaw of old man Roberts' buttoned on top, said yes, it was.

She measured out the cornstarch, snuffling eloquently as she did so, because with Lettie Higgins—Hobey's name was Higgins then—it was always borrow borrow, borrow, and a cup of this, and a slice of that, and you had to borrow it back yourself to get it back at all.

This was the full purport of Mrs. Roberts' nasal comment, and Hobey comprehended it in some degree, but if it was intended to embarrass him it failed—it left him stolid, eyeing the box in which the baby lay, and thinking that a box like that would make a cart, if you had wheels. He would like a little cart for doing his hauling

The snow was almost gone outside the house, where it had banked so high all through the long Maine winter, from the first week of October on. Now it was later in March, and today the sun was shining, and the paths were crusted mud between the risen roots of trees It was still very cold; there was a northeast wind beating the harbor into tossing froth, and you could hear the open sea roar on the rocks far down the island The morning air had a transparent clarity, and the white houses on the mainland stood out sharp and definite against the hill they climbed. They were sharp houses anyway; hewn blocks of wood without adornment. Maine houses, built by fishermen, and bleak as winter life.

They were about half a mile from here. They formed the coastal village known as Channel Harbor.

To the two hundred inhabitants of Mitchell's Island in the harbor, the village on the mainland was a gay metropolis. Hobey at nine had never seen a bigger place, although he hoped to. Some day he hoped to see North Trimble, where the railroad was.

He walked home noisily, clumping along in rubber boots too large for him; covering the cup of cornstarch with the hand that wasn't carrying it, against the prankish wind. He knew the path too well to have to watch where he was going, and he looked everywhere—you could see everything from here. This was the ridge that formed the backbone of the island. It ran five miles from end to end, and most of it was buried deep in pines, but here it was all open fields with houses scattered through them. This was the settled part of Mitchell's Island, the lea shore. Only the summer people liked the ocean side.

The summer people were unquestionably mad—they were as crazy as so many loons, and everybody said so—and if you were an island boy of nine, it was the better part of valour for you to keep your traitor's admiration for them to yourself. Hobey did this. He could laugh at them like anybody else. He could recite examples of what landlubbers they were.

His mother washed for some of them and he delivered all the washings, and when she had fresh eggs to sell, or lettuce from the garden, or pints of blueberries or raspberries, he was the one who sold them, at the summer people's screened back doors. That was one reason why he wished he had a little cart with wheels. It was two miles diagonally across the island to their houses.

The summer people were from Boston, and around there. They arrived about the first of July, and stayed through August. There were eleven families in all—last year there had been Hobey knew all their foolishness, as well as anybody. He knew funnier things about them than he ever told, in point of fact. There was, for instance, the new family—new last summer—by the name of Hastings, with the little girl named Rosalie, who said people ate snails. She swore they did She said she'd seen them eating them, in France She said she'd been to France on a boat bigger than this island, or anyhow half as big. She said it had eight decks to it. She said it was as high as Far Point lighthouse—it was higher, even. She was the craziest kid you ever heard.

Still, Hobey liked her. He would never tell on her. They were good friends, from the first day they talked together. She was a busy little thing, always doing something.

He remembered vividly the day she went away—he was remembering it now, crossing the melting fields towards home. Now it was spring, and in three months it would be summer, and she would be back. He saw in his mind's eye the round straw hat with an elastic and two streamers, and the blue serge sailor suit with the starred collar and a whistle on a ribbon in the pocket, in which she had departed. She had looked very citified, but she had blown the whistle at him reassuringly, and she had waved until the boat rounded the point. She had kept calling things back to the wharf.

"You come and see me in my house in Boston!" she had screamed to all the summer kids, and then, just at the last, "And you, too, Hobey! You come too!"

She was his dream when he was nine, and for years later.

He grew rapidly, as island children do In three years more, when he was only twelve, he stood as tall as his bent father, who had once been six feet one.

His mother died that January, suddenly, all in a minute, on the path up from the well behind the house They found her lying there in a heap in her black shawl, with her black sleeves reaching ahead of her, between the buckets full of water she had carried just so far.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

Underneath his swagger, Stephen Redfield has an exaggerated inferiority complex, and it is comparatively easy to deflate him as I realized anew when his truculent manner crumpled into apparently docile agreement.

"Evidently there is nothing else for me to do," he said sullenly. "You have all the winning cards."

"I am glad you realize that," I said smoothly "Now I will call Mary, but remember, you are not to storm at her or upset her in any way. She has a performance tonight."

'And so have I!' he said almost hissing the words.

"That's what she's going to fix up for me," he went on, with an emphasis on each word that spelled malignance.

"If she can," I said, with like emphasis, "and she will be the sole judge of what she can or will do. Please remember that."

He remained sullenly silent, and I tapped on the bedroom door.

"Stephen Redfield is here, Mary, and wishes to see you," I said.

"I'll be right out," she answered.

Both men had risen, and I introduced Winters to Mary before she had a chance to speak to Steve. Then she turned to Steve with carefully calculated nonchalance.

"Lo, Steve!" she said, but she did not hold out her hand. "What can I do for you?"

Steve Closely Watched.

She seated herself near me, facing Steve, who remained tensely erect. Winters was standing also, closely watching Redfield, ready to foil any threat from the overwrought actor.

"You know very well what you can do for me, Mary," Redfield said, his voice a curious mixture of reproach, appeal and covert threat.

"I know only one thing at this minute," Mary laughingly retorted, "and that is that you give me the willies, standing there towering and glowering. Sit down, relax, stretch yourself out—then tell me what's eating you."

"I prefer to stand," he said stiffly.

"And I prefer that you sit down," Mary shot back. "So if you want to unload your soul in my direction, drop your frame in to that chair"

Robbed Of Truculence.

She had robbed him at a stroke of half his truculence. He gave her a long, questioning look, and then sat down in the chair she had indicated Winters sat down too, but was closely watching Redfield

"There! That's more like it," Mary commented, as she flashed a smile at Steve. "Now what's on your mind?"

'You know very well what's troubling me," he said. "Do you know what your father-in-law told me just now?"

'I haven't the slightest idea," she said mendaciously, "unless—I did hear him say that you couldn't possibly be in shape, physically or mentally, to go on tonight."

Steve leaned forward, his hands gripping the arms of his chair, and Winters leaned forward also, tensely watchful.

"And you are going to stand by and let him do that to me?" Steve shouted.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, January 14.

Astral forces are read as adverse, with opposition, antagonism and lack of support both public and private, inciting to impetuous, belligerent, reckless and regrettable conduct. There is need for discretion and vigilance in handling all correspondence, documents and agreements.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by adverse and difficult situations, which may arouse their ire and incite to intemperate, rash and quarrelsome conduct which may turn consideration and support from those in power into active opposition or conflict. The advisable and encouraging suggestion is to overlook all unfriendliness or friction and forge ahead.

A child born on this day will probably be forceful and energetic, industrious and determined, although impulsive, turbulent and ill-tempered when opposed.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

PREVENT TRUMP LEADS

Among the most important times to refuse a finesse are those in which you do not wish the opponents to lead trumps to you. If you require all but one of the dummy's trumps for ruffing, and a trump has been led through your tenace, your best move is to calmly use your top card and accept a later loser in the suit in order to keep the defenders from a second chance to lead trumps.

(Dealer. South Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

South was lucky to be in a game which could be made by perfect play, as many players would have passed with that North hand Still others, of course, would have bid 2-Diamonds with the intention of rebidding for a sign-off, which also would have enabled him to find a game contract in spades.

West chose the heart 10 for his lead, enabling South to take three heart tricks at the outset for a club discard. Next he led the club J West ducking and the Q winning. Back came the spade 7 and South finessed from force of habit, playing low to let the trick run toward the 10 But West won with the K and returned his spade 9. As you can see, that left only one trump in the dummy for ruffing purposes So South had to lose two more tricks in clubs and be set one

If South had used his A on that spade lead to the fifth trick, then led a second-round club for a ruff with the spade 6, he could not have been beaten. A diamond ruff could have been used for re-entry, then a third club led. If West won with his K, he would have had no other trump to return. South could then ruff the probable return of a diamond, then ruff the fourth round club with the spade 10 in dummy, return to his hand with another diamond ruff, cash his spade Q and give East the last trick with the club 10 to the spade 3.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Following three club tricks and a lead of the heart 4 by West, how can South play this deal for 4-Spades?

Your Federal Income Tax

NO. 9

INCOME TO BE REPORTED

In preparing a federal income tax return, income from whatever source, unless specifically exempt by statute, must be reported in the return. The types of income specifically exempt are listed in the instructions accompanying the return form.

In addition to salaries, wages, fees and commissions which must be reported, all bonuses, tips, prizes and awards, and other forms of compensation, must be included. A minister of the gospel must report all fees he receives for funerals, for masses, for baptisms, for marriages, and for other like services. If a person is paid in whole or in part for his services in anything other than money, the fair market value of whatever was received must be reported as income. This applies to the rental value of quarters furnished an employe as part of his compensation (with the exception of the rental value of parsonages furnished to ministers of the gospel), board and lodging furnished as part of an employe's compensation, where the board and lodging is not provided primarily for the convenience of the employer.

Income must be reported whether received in hand or not, if there is "constructive receipt"; that is, if it has been credited to the account of, or set apart for, a taxpayer without any substantial limitation or restriction, and which may be drawn upon by him at any time. This applies to interest credited to a savings account, and subject to withdrawal during the year, to dividend checks received during the year, whether cashed or not, to interest coupons maturing during the year whether cash or not (unless the bond is in default and no funds are available to pay the interest coupons) and the like.

Interest accumulated, or accrued, during the year, on War Savings Bonds may be treated by a taxpayer reporting his income on the cash basis either as income during the year or the accrual may be deferred until the maturity of the bonds and reported as income then. However, a taxpayer on the cash basis who elects to report such incomes as it accrues must adhere to that method in all subsequent returns.

A farmer who trades or exchanges the produce of his farm for goods or services, must report as income the value of the goods or services received by such trade or exchange.

Alimony and separate maintenance payments periodically received by a wife subsequent to decree of divorce or of separate maintenance must be reported as income.

In the case of noncommissioned military and navy personnel, compensation for military or naval service, to the extent of $250 for a single person and $300 in the case of a married person or head of family, received during the year, may be excluded in reporting income. Also the amounts contributed by the government to the service man's "monthly family allowance" are in the nature of gifts by the government and need not be included in income.

Selecting Your Funeral Director Is Important

Calling a funeral director through chance acquaintance, or whose place of business may be near, is too great a risk on a service so important to every member of a family. Funeral service, to be satisfactory, requires knowledge, equipment, ability and experience.

For that reason we have been advocating that every family investigate for themselves . . . Then when occasion demands no hurried or ill-advised choice need be made upon the spur of the moment.

We furnish any desired information about funeral service and its cost. Those who come to consult us incur no obligation.

Baker and Hahn Pace 36 to 25 Victory

N. C. O. League Leaders Fail To Find Hoop As Old Rivals Tangle

By WALLY DAVIS

THOSE ancient rivals of the basketball court, Mansfield and Ashland high schools, tangled again last night at Senior high gym, with the Tygers coming out of the wild and woolly tussle victorious, 36 to 25.

It was a typical Mansfield-Ashland scrap all the way, with the usual amount of action and hard play evident.

The Tygers' guiding light was little Bob (Peanuts) Baker, clever working forward. Baker, held to two points by Lima Central Tuesday came back strong to drop in 15 points and lead all scorers. He also turned in a fine defensive game, breaking up numerous Ashland passes and blocking several shots.

Dean Hahn was close behind Baker, caging five buckets and a pair of free throws for 12 points. Hahn got six of his tallies in the third quarter spree which put the game on ice for the Tygers.

Andy Lamoreux and Les Myers also turned in fine games. Lamoreux getting seven points and handling the rebounds in fine style. Myers, although held scoreless, was a vital defensive cog for the Tygers.

Jacobs was the outstanding performer for Ashland, scoring eight points.

Ashland took an early lead when Jacobs opened the scoring with an under bucket shot and a free throw and Darr dropped in a long shot. A goal by Baker and a free toss by Lamoreux were sandwiched in between this spurt and the score was 5 to 3.

The Tygers quickly erased the deficit, Lamoreux scoring on a lay-up and Hahn hitting from the side. Lamoreux counted a foul shot as the first quarter ended with Mansfield in front, 8 to 5.

The Tygers increased their advantage in the next frame. Baker hit from the foul line and came back with a bucket from the side, running the count to 11-5. Baker dropped in another free toss before Ashland's Harris chalked up a two-pointer from underneath the hoop. Hahn's foul shot gave the Tygers a 13-7 lead. Jacobs and McBride got free throws as the result of a double foul, and both made good. Lamoreux also got a free one and it was 15-8 Mansfield.

Baker scored on a lay-up and Hahn hit from the side, giving the Tygers an 11-point lead. Jacobs and Cross dropped in buckets for Ashland as the half ended 19 to 12.

The Tygers went on an 11-point spree in the third quarter while holding Ashland to five points, this spurt putting the game in the bag for the Red and White cagers.

Cross of Ashland got a free throw to open the period. Hahn scored on a sucker shot. Jacobs hit from the side and it was 21-15.

Lamoreux and Hahn pumped in buckets for the Tygers and Baker made a free throw and a lay-up shot to run the count to 28-15. Harris scored from underneath the basket but Hahn got another sucker shot, making it 30-17 entering the last quarter.

The game got rough in the last frame, with the two teams shooting 20 foul shots.

Baker got a free point. Hahn also hit from the foul stripe and the score was 32 to 17. Baker tossed in another free one. Harris made good on two foul shot attempts. Baker flipped in his final bucket putting the Tygers in front 35-19. At this point Coach Hoffman sent in an entire new team for Mansfield.

Crownover got a free toss making it 36-19. Ashland then chalked up six straight points to complete the scoring. Reinhart dropped in a sucker shot. Dove made a pair of foul shots and Reinhart and Neller each got free throws to end the game.

It was a disappointing performance for the Ashland five, who came to town boasting a five-game winning streak and a share of the leadership in the N. C. O. league race.

The Orange and Black cagers turned in a shooting average of only 16 per cent. They made 50 attempts and hit only eight times.

The Tygers scored 12 buckets in 51 tries for an average of slightly better than 23.5 per cent.

Mansfield made good on 12 of 20 free throws for a 60 per cent mark while Ashland tossed in nine out of 21 for a mark of 43 per cent.

Led by Mike Zivkoff who flipped in 14 points, the Mansfield Sophomores defeated St. Luke's Church league five 33 to 18 in a preliminary.

Dick Flockenzier scored six points to gain scoring honors for the Lutherans.

The Sophomores piled up a 19 to 5 lead in the first half and coasted in the final two periods.

Petersen Pin Event Booked

One Bowling Classic Continued In Wartime.

CHICAGO — (AP) — The war caused cancellation of the annual American Bowling Congress this year but the nation's top keglers won't miss out on the game's biggest money event—with a $4,000 cash prize to the top man in eight games.

The annual Petersen individual classic, with a record entry of 832 bowlers having an average of 185 or better, will begin on Jan. 23 and continue for nine days.

Each bowler will roll eight games across 16 alleys. Three squads, each made up of 32 men, will compete on Jan. 23 and 24. Two squads are scheduled daily the next four days, three on Friday, Jan. 29, and five each on the two closing days, Jan. 30 and 31.

Reds May Train At Indiana U.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Forsaking tropical sunshine for conservation of travel-miles, the Cincinnati Reds will de their spring training on the Indiana University campus, at Bloomington, if university trustees give them the green light.

I. U. Athletic Director Zora Clevenger is slated to proposition the board of trustees and general manager Warren C. Giles of the Reds was told "a decision is likely in three or four days."

Giles inspected the Hoosier campus and was enthusiastic over his facilities.

"The fieldhouse is excellent for batting and fielding and practice," Giles asserted. "In fact, the while setup is marvelous. We are hopeful of getting the come-ahead.

The Bloomington site would allow the Reds a fairly normal spring training schedule with other major league foes.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Miss Midnight's Notebook.

Manhatatan Glitter: Peter Lorre at the Stork club looking like a cherub on a valentine. . . . Julie Haydon wearing heavy red wool stockings to a glamor-date . . . Gregory Ratoff, the celebrity — he's the only fellow on Broadway who can pronounce the names of all those Russian cities . . . Ella Logan, the Scottish lass, in slacks . . . Henry Kaiser hurrying through the Waldorf lobby—you wouldn't expect HIM to stroll, would you? . . . Commander Gene Tunney, of the Navy, a front-row spectator at "Something for the Boys."

Kilgallen

Fables From the Fifties Biagio is a waiter at a tiny 50th Street spot known as the Chateau Moderne and has never quite recovered from his romance with a pretty girl who just a few years ago filled his life with dreams and then left him empty-hearted.

The other day the lovely lady—who is now married to a rich man—dropped into the cafe to dine. And when she got up to depart she left a five-dollar tip for the waiter with whom she was once in love.

Biagio doesn't see a five-dollar tip very often. But he didn't spend this one. He had the bill framed and hung it on the restaurant's kitchen wall.

A Stone's Throw From Broadway: Because Ruthie Lane, who produced the new show at Leon and Eddie's, is an alumnae of the chorus ranks, the chorines there are working harder than they ever did—all in honor of their new boss. She has the belles on their toes, so to speak.

Times Square Cuff Notes: Ann Mace, the Amazon beauty of Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe, has finally found herself a boy friend her own size. He's Aviation Cadet Robert Millwood, whose six-foot-four-inches gives him a one-inch advantage over his quart-size glamor girl . . . Police were on hand at the premiere of the Merman show to see if any of the notables arrived in pleasure cars—but there wasn't a single offender. Even the Julies Brulatours, who haven't drawn up to a theater curb in anything but a gold-tipped limousine for years and years, came in a hired coach.

The Owl Patrol: Sharp contestant for the title of eatingest entertainer in town is Carmen Amaya, the flamenco dancer. She sits around between shows in the kitchen of La Conga, surrounded by members of her vast family, and stows away heavily spiced dishes while Mama Amaya makes with the pots and pans. It's part of Carmen's contract that Mama can cook in the kitchen of any nitery where she works . . . The Cub Room Romeos who glared because Guy Kibbee was in with the prettiest belle in the place should have investigated further . . . She was his niece, Virginia Kibbee . . . Preview audiences at the new Bob Hope-Dorothy Lamour co-starrer, "They Got Me Covered," laugh loudest when Lamour says, "I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth," and he retorts: "If I were the last man on earth, you'd need a priority!"

All Around the Town: Joy Hodges and James Melton exchanging trills on Sutton Place . . . Ilona—the Massey who was too, too pretty to play Abe Lincoln

Al Jolson and Moss Hart indulging in their favorite pastime—swapping bad movies at intermission period at the Alvin (Moss traded "The Black Swan" for Al's "The Foolish Virgin) . . . Larry Adler, the harmonica whiz, and Luther Adler, the actor, meeting for the first time in Reuben's and discovering that they're both "Lawrence Adler" on their birth certificate and that they have children born on the same day, at the same time.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—I suppose there ought to be some significance in the fact that, for the first time in seven years, Hollywood's stars are without a moppet to lead them at the box-office.

Coons

The Motion Picture Herald's annual poll, results of which named the "money-making stars of 1942" as measured by the paying customers, thumped Mickey Rooney off his throne and down to fourth place. Mickey had been wearing the crown three straight years, since 1939 when he—and her advancing years—knocked off Shirley Temple. Shirley had been queen for four years, a record reign.

It's hard to read a trend into the results. You might argue that a year of war has made the American movie-going public turn from juvenile stuff toward stern realities—but then you run smack into the fact that the new throne-sitters are Abbott and Costello, mighty exponents of the oldest rehurbished gags in burlesque. The only "stern realities" offered by the success of Bud and Lou are that folks would a sight rather laugh than weep and that old gags, like old friends, are still the best.

Clark Gable is in second place again, for the 11th year of the poll in which he has always ranked among the top 10.

So far, the improvement which was expected to bring to the rating of women stars is not manifest. Maybe it will come this next year, but as of 1942 the fans still were including only two feminine stars in the top 10. To slip in Betty Grable and Greer Garson they ousted Bette Davis and Judy Garland.

This repeats last year's selection of one musical star and one dramatic actress, and affords (for the cynical) a commentary on the relative value of acting artistry and sex appeal in movie success. Miss Grable, a sprightly, hard-working song-and-dance girl in musicals, rates eighth in the list—one step ahead of Miss Garson, a charming, attractive woman and accomplished actress but scarcely a soldier's "pin-up" favorite.

In these polls it's always quantity as well as quality of films that counts. In the Grable-Garson contest, Betty had the advantage of four films, while Greer competed with only one—the superlative "Mrs. Miniver." Gary Cooper copped third place with three top-notchers: "Sergeant York," "Ball of Fire," and "Pride of the Yankees." James Cagney jumped from ninth last year to sixth place on only two films—"Captains of the Clouds" and "Yankee Doodle Dandy." Mickey Rooney had only three releases (the unhappy "Yank at Eton" among them) to Abbott and Costello's four.

As for A & C, you can take your choice of explanations for their quick rise. The simplest, and obviously the true one, is that fans find them funny no matter what they do

Drastic Reorganization of WLB Planned

BOND TO HEAD RICHLAND RED CROSS CHAPTER

Treasurer For 8 Years Elected President To Succeed L. W. Birch.

Allen Bond, treasurer of the Richland county chapter of the Red Cross for eight years, was elected president of the organization Tuesday afternoon when the chapter held its annual meeting and election of officers at the executive headquarters.

Bond succeeds L. W. Birch who headed the organization last year and was recently named chairman of the 1943 Red Cross War Fund Roll Call. Mrs. C. C. Fish of Shelby was retained as vice president, and Dean Eckert was elected treasurer.

Four new directors were also elected for a one-year term while 22 members of the board were retained. Elected were Mrs. William Layton, Paul Sturges, jr., Dean Eckert and R. B. Black.

Mrs. George L. Draffan, chairman, reported for the nominating committee composed of Mrs. Mrs. Frank H. Maxwell, John Finefrock and Milo W. Hieber of Mansfield, and Lewis O. Patterson of Shelby.

The annual reports of the treasurer and chairmen of volunteer services were distributed in printed form to all persons attending the meeting in order to conserve time since the regular January session followed the annual business.

Tentative plans for the War Fund Roll Call in March were outlined by Birch. No goal for the county has been released as yet by national headquarters, he said.

The treasurer's report showed that the county chapter disbursed funds amounting to $14,004.56 the past year against receipts of $21,351.88. A balance of $7,347.32 remained in the treasury Dec. 31.

Four new volunteer services, staff assistance, blood donor, Nurses' Aid and canteen were added to the chapter program last year while the work of the home service department increased to the point where the employment of a full-time home service secretary was necessary. The number of home service cases for 1942 totalled 1,091, an increase of 450 per cent over the preceding year according to R. K. Clark, chairman.

In the production department, 1,500 workers produced 12,340 sewed and knitted garments while 235 surgical dressings workers made 68,321 dressings. The Junior Red Cross also made or collected thousands of items for the military and also local services.

The Nurses' Aides, 46 of them, gave 3,393 hours of service to Mansfield General hospital and 132 certificates were issued to home nursing students. The blood donor service received 990 pints of blood from county contributors.

First aid certificates totalling 3,501 were issued, also 148 instructors' certificates and 10 water safety instructors' certificates.

Hours of service contributed by the Women's Motor corps totalled 1,433 while the staff assistance corps lent clerical aid to the extent of 5,814 hours. Twenty-eight canteen workers stand ready to give volunteer service while 124 persons have received nutrition certificates.

The War Fund drive for $30,000 started in December, 1941, raised $45,572.10 by the time it was completed early in 1942. Another highlight of the year was the mobilization of the disaster preparedness and relief committee.

Directors continuing on the board next year include Mrs. Leopold Adams, Mrs. W. J. Bishop, Robert Black, Birch, Clark, Mrs. Draffan, John H. Finefrock, Charles W. Fuchs, G. W. Harmony, L. F. Hartman, Milo W. Hieber, R. D. Iden, Mrs. F. H. Maxwell, Marshall C. Moore, Mrs. L. J. Ott, Mrs. J. B. Simon, Mrs. Allan Tappan, Dr. Hugh Winbigler and Dr. R. C. Wise, of Mansfield, Lewis O. Patterson of Shelby, Mrs. K. M. Wilson, Bellville, and Mrs. W. C. McFadden of Plymouth.

BOOK SPEAKER FOR Y.W. DINNER

Secretary Who Was Prisoner of Japanese To Give Talk at Annual Meeting.

The experiences of a Y. W. C. A. executive while she was held prisoner by the Japanese from the day of the siege of Hongkong until her return to the United States on the diplomatic exchange ship, Gripsholm, will be heard by the Mansfield Y. W. C. A. membership at the annual dinner meeting Friday night, Jan. 29.

Miss Marian Dudley, the speaker, is the executive secretary for the annual meeting of the foreign division of the association to be held in Cleveland, Jan. 22-24, and after her appearance in Mansfield she will go to Canada for several speaking engagements among associations there.

An executive secretary in Y. W. C. A. work in the United States prior to going to China in 1938, Miss Dudley later became director of the work in Canton, Hongkong and the southern provinces of China. As the war advanced in these areas she helped to establish inland refugee camps and similar places of refuge.

She was taken prisoner in her room at Hongkong where she had gone for warmer clothing on the day the siege started. From then on she was held in the Stanley internment camp until her release to return to the United States.

The annual business meeting of the local association is being held separate from the dinner this year to facilitate general procedure. The date for the business session will be set by the annual meeting committee Friday at 2:30 p. m., at the building.

'AIR PROGRESS' SELECTED AS THEME FOR JANUARY GRADUATES

Choosing "air progress" as the theme for commencement services, the January graduating class at Mansfield Senior high school made further preparation today for activities with class day chairmen completing arrangements for class day on Jan. 22.

The 85 seniors will be graduated Jan. 29 at 7:30 p. m. in the school auditorium at which time Charles M. Newcomb, lecturer from Delaware, will deliver the address. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer will present the baccalaureate sermon Sunday, Jan. 24 in the First Lutheran church. The class party is to be Jan. 27 in the form of a dinner-dance in the cafeteria.

On Thursday at 7 p. m. all senior students interested in reading parts for the class day program are to meet at the school with Earl Heasley, dramatics instructor, for try-outs. Marching will be practiced Monday and Tuesday mornings in the auditorium.

Besides the class dues, money raised from the three dances sponsored during the final year by the class and other projects in their sophomore and junior years, $137 was cleared from the recent sale of Christmas cards, Miriam Hoff, secretary, said.

Heading the class day committee is Dorothy Hainer, assisted by William Beam, A. J. Watson, and Barbara McDowell. The class prophecy is being written by Robert Wolf, chairman, Richard Mumford, Lois Grove and Virginia Kindinger. Laff-a-Day

"I guess we had it too well camouflaged with trees. A family of bears has hibernated in there for the winter!"

Thieves with a penchant for writing, maybe, escaped with $100 worth of fountain pens and patent pencils by working a ruse on a girl clerk at the Mansfield Typewriter and Office Supply company, 34-38 West Third street. Police were told that three men entered the salesroom in the late afternoon, one requesting the lone girl clerk for a supply of paper to be cut to certain dimensions. While he accompanied the clerk to a rear stockroom his two confederates rifled display cases of the writing equipment.

Many Mansfielders feed nuts to squirrels during the winter but Frank C. Poling, state liquor store manager who lives at 104 Marion avenue, reports an innovation in diet for the "furry friends" in his neighborhood. Several days ago occupants of the household were alarmed by scratching and gnawing noises around the gables. It was discovered a family of half-grown squirrels had taken winter quarters there. Yesterday morning Mrs. Poling baked an over-supply of buckwheat cakes for breakfast, tossing out the surplus to birds which come daily for crumbs. Noting soon afterward that the cakes were gone entirely, Mrs. Poling investigated and found an adolescent squirrel almost completely hidden by a flapjack at which it was munching. Looking farther, a companion was seen perching on a limb of a tree, contentedly gnawing another cake.

The life of a band leader, as far as traveling about the country on wartime schedules and in face of increasing transportation difficulties is concerned, was de-glamored by Art Jarrett, popular maestro, who appeared with his band at the Madison theater yesterday. Jarrett said the band that travels by rail had lately found itself in a series of transportation predicaments. On one occasion the band found itself 25 miles from the town in which it was to play a special club dance with no travel facilities for reaching the dance except an old truck. On another occasion, the band got into town just in time to start playing and was not even permitted time by the dance sponsor to change clothes or shave before occupying the shell.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch and Mayor Leroy Coffee, co-ordinators of defense of the Mansfield and Shelby councils, respectively, and Mrs. Edith Metcalf, secretary of the county organization, will represent their groups. County commissioners, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, and County Engineer Howard Sword have been invited to attend the session.

Mr. Chamberlin, resident of Lucas for the past 20 years, died Monday night after a lingering illness. His death followed that of a son, George, by seven weeks.

HOLD MEETINGS

Three Communities Told About Production Program.

Neighborhood leaders meetings were held in three Richland farm communities last night for the purpose of taking inventory of farm problems relative to outlining the 1943 production program.

Meetings were held in the Rome Township house in Bloominggrove township, the Mifflin township house in Mifflin township and at the C. C. Till home in Sharon township. Other similar meetings will be held soon.

Discussions evolved around such subjects as machinery, labor, fertilizer and fence.

14 BOARDS TO WIELD FINAL AUTHORITY

Will Have Full Power to Rule on Labor Disputes; Speeding of Settlements Sought.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The war labor board, it was learned today, has decided on a drastic reorganization of procedure calling for the creation of 12 to 14 regional boards with power to rule finally in labor disputes and voluntary wage and salary agreements.

The regional boards will be set up in the ten cities in which the WLB now has regional offices, with two others located in Detroit and Seattle. Two more may be established later.

A growing backlog of cases and complaints of delay which sometimes manifest themselves in "quickie" work stoppages led the board to decide on this virtual all-out decentralization and delegation of authority.

The regional boards will be almost exact counter-parts of the WLB in Washington. They will have 12 members each, four representing industry, four labor, and four public members. It is possible, however, that only half that number will serve on a full-time basis at first. The present regional director in each case will become one of the public members as well as chairman.

Each board will have its own staff of mediators, panel assistants, referees, and research and review analysts.

By this method the WLB hopes to speed up disposition of disputes and to reduce to a mere trickle the volume of cases coming to Washington. In effect, the WLB will constitute itself a "supreme court" in its field, deciding those cases which affect basic policy.

Cities in which these boards will be established are: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Cleveland, Chicago, Kansas City, Denver, Dallas, Detroit, Seattle and San Francisco.

Jarrett's Band Gives Pleasing Performance Here

Art Jarrett and his band gave a pleased Mansfield audience a sample of the brand of music for which that smooth organization is famous yesterday when they played a single day's engagement at the Madison theater before going to Newark, N. J., to begin a stand in the east.

The orchestra that recently closed a three months' engagement at the Blackhawk restaurant in Chicago has been playing a series of one-night stands, Jarrett said, but the transportation problem for such engagements is becoming increasingly difficult.

Originally the band had eight of the late Hal Kemp's men in its personnel but has lost all of them to the armed forces. John Zellner, a Mansfield musician and former pianist with the Jarrett aggregation is now playing in Miami.

Irving Berlin's show "This Is the Army," furnished the band with one of its leading medley arrangements while fun was supplied by Billy Blair, retund bass player, who took the spotlight for several comedy songs including "Mr. Five By Five." Jarrett and Tommy Morgan were other contributors to the vocal part of the program.

$75,000 FIRE HITS HARTMAN ELECTRIC PLANT

Four Firemen Injured During Eight-Hour Battle; Army, Navy To Open Probe.

enter a window of the flame-filled upper third story.

Central station firemen responded to the first alarm at 5:22 p. m., and when Chief Seeburger saw the flames spreading beyond control a general alarm was sounded at 5:41 p. m. with crews of No. 2 and No. 4 engine houses called to the scene. In the next two hours all off-duty firemen had responded to the general call.

Captain L. R. Zimmerman, acting chief after Seeburger was taken to General hospital, ordered ice-coated and worn-out firemen to cease work at 2:30 a. m., but a weary crew returned to the scene at 4:40 a. m. when a flash blaze in the ruins brought another alarm.

Throughout the night firemen and a squad of policemen who directed traffic, kept back huge crowds of onlookers and assisted with firefighting equipment, were stimulated with steaming cups of black coffee brewed and served by Captain Richard L. Gutterman of the Volunteers of America.

When the blaze broke out of the furnace room an up-draft in an elevator shaft swirled blazing spirals to a third floor storeroom in the southwest corner of the structure and firemen sought to confine major damage to this area and prevent a spread to the machine rooms and gauge departments in first floor and basement rooms.

Firemen reported that a secondary ceiling about two feet from the roof created an oven-like fireplace in which the flames could spread on thoroughly dried wooden timbers almost at will and beyond reach of water streams.

Three lines of hose were in operation during the early hours of the battle and at near midnight a fourth was strung to the basement coal room where fuel had been ignited by falling timbers. Flooding of the coal-bins prevented fire from converting the office and vault rooms into blazing infernos.

Fire barricades kept curious from tampering in the smouldering ruins this morning while refreshed firemen and members of the firm sought to determine the full extent of the damage and the possible salvage of machinery vital to the war effort.

Several whiteway and other street-lighting power circuits were out of service during the night after Ohio Public Service company employes cut high-tension circuits leading into the doomed plant.

OPENS FRIDAY

Farm Institute Session Set For Three Districts.

The Farmers' Institute season in Richland county will get under way Friday night with a session at the Union Rural high school for Weller, Franklin, and Mifflin townships.

Speaker at the opening meeting at 8 p. m. Friday will be J. Campbell White. A discussion period will be conducted Saturday at 10:15 a. m., with the men considering the topic: "Problems of 1943 Food Production" and the women using the subject, "Homemakers Facing the Emergency."

Following the discussion period there will be talks by Miss Elizabeth Bay, county home demonstration agent, and County Agent George B. Ganyard.

John L. Catlett, state representative from Richland county, is scheduled to speak at the Saturday afternoon meeting. Motion pictures will be shown Saturday night.

MUST DEDUCT TAX

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The regional War Labor Board, in the first decision of its kind, denied the Barrett Line, Incorporated, of Cincinnati permission to pay the five per cent victory tax without deducting it from employes' pay. The WLB held such a practice would amount to a five per cent salary increase.

HEAR OPA SPEAKER

ASHLAND—Mason C. Jones, OPA tire expert, will address Ashland and Loudonville tire inspectors at a meeting Tuesday, Jan. 19, at the Ashland rationing board office. The meeting, originally scheduled for an earlier date, was postponed because Mason was unable to appear.

Pound Japs From Air, on Land Over Wide Pacific Area

into the enemy's narrow defense corridor at Sanananda Point.

At the same time, delayed messages from American-defended Guadalcanal island, in the Solomons, reported U. S. Army troops and marines accounted for 186 known Japanese killed and captured a number of guns on Jan. 2 when they stormed a strategic hill and cleaned out Japanese pockets of resistance.

The assault was reported without detail by the navy on Jan. 5.

Other dispatches said American patrols, fighting a series of bitter actions in soggy jungles, had killed an average of 15 Japanese to each American lost.

Maj.-Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commanding general of U. S. Army forces in the South Pacific, told newsmen it was "just a question of time" before American troops won control of the key island.

In aerial blows against the Japanese, these were the major actions:

South Sea — Allied warplanes pounded the big Japanese base at Salamaua, in northern New Guinea, strafed enemy coastal targets, and delivered a low-level attack against the Japanese airdrome at Fuiloro, in Portuguese Timor.

Burma—RAF bombers ranged far into Japanese-conquered Burma yesterday without encountering air opposition from the enemy, attacking railway transportation and river and coastal shipping.

British headquarters said the RAF bombed two villages on Akyab island, on the Bay of Bengal; machine-gunned railway buildings and rolling stock in central Burma; strafed Japanese river craft on the Chindwin and Irrawaddy rivers and in the Rathedaung sector, 25 miles north of Akyab; and blasted supply boats off the Burma coasts below Akyab.

RENEWS PACTS

Council Approves $5,000 For Indigent Hospital Patients.

City council last night renewed contracts with General hospital for the medical and surgical care of indigent persons committed to the institution under municipal authority.

In one agreement the city will pay the Richland county Medical society $5,000 for services rendered such patients by society members. In a companion contract the city will continue to pay $4.75 per day for hospital care of the patients. A third contract provides payment of $115 a month for laboratory services. Rates are the same as last year.

After two months of jockeying council passed an ordinance regulating "quitting business" sales and auctions, the legislation fixing a $15 license fee, stipulating the duration of such sales and limiting the merchandise offered to the inventory presented when the license is applied for.

Contracts were approved for supplying fire protection to Madison township and South Boulevards during 1943.

HONOR BELL

Hundreds Pay Final Tribute To Former Police Chief.

Hundreds paid final tribute to the late Police Chief Thomas M. Bell during civil and military funeral services in Memorial hall and at Mansfield cemetery this afternoon.

Columns of friends and admirers passed his flower-banked bier as the body lay in state from 12 noon to 2 p. m. in the Memorial building. Uniformed members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion flanked the casket in a guard of honor. Members of the police department and the United Spanish War Veterans were active pallbearers while city officials and fraternal brothers comprised the honorary escort.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. Campbell White of the United Presbyterian church and Rev. Grover E. Swoyer of First Lutheran church. Military rites were carried out at the grave.

The city hall remained closed this afternoon.

James F. Carrigan, protection chief of Westinghouse, presided at the conference. He announced that 324 men and 76 women workers in the plant have completed required training for air wardens, auxiliary policemen and firemen and first aid workers and that another class this week began training in various phases of civilian defense as it pertains to industry.

VanDerau told the conference of defensive or protective measures he studied recently on the east and west coasts.

DOUBT OHIO TIME CHANGE

Some Assembly Members Set To Go Against Voters, Fear 'Unpatriotic' Charge.

occasion when they would be justified in acting contrary to their constituents' wishes.

The sentiment against eastern wartime is strongest in the house, where 16 of the time-change bills were introduced. Many members of the senate are not sold on the proposals.

Agreement by both branches of the legislature is necessary to change the law. And the governor can veto their action. Three-fifths of the membership is required to override a veto.

Gov. John W. Bricker told the legislature it had a "solemn obligation" to consider the time question "from the standpoint of giving the greatest aid to the nation at war."

Majority Leader Frank E. Whittemore of the senate said he believed that branch would proceed cautiously.

In the house, Speaker William M. McCulloch and Majority Leader William H. Deddens said action on the time-change bills would not be rushed.

Senator Whittemore is reported to feel that legislative action disregarding the WPB's advice would be unwise, and several senate colleagues share his opinion.

Some senators fear that advocacy of returning to the pre-war time might make them liable to criticism of being unpatriotic. Furthermore, if Ohio became the first state to nullify the act of congress it might be pointed to as a bad example for other states with less justification, as the WPB said.

From a political viewpoint, Ohio in such a position would not be helpful to the presidential chances of Governor Bricker, some of his supporters said.

The activities also included introduction of bills to reduce the speed limit from 50 miles an hour to 35 and to pay the $6,274,000 remainder of the school foundation debt, and senate confirmation of the reappointment of the governor's cabinet members.

Catlett Introduces Time-Change Bill

Among the 16 bills introduced into the 95th Ohio general assembly to effect a basic time change that would set the state's clocks back one hour was one measure prepared by Richland county representative John L. Catlett.

Catlett today described his bill as a "middle of the road measure." It would turn the clocks back only during the "dark months," leaving the period from April 15 to Sept. 15, inclusive, under present time regulations.

tacks outside Leningrad and south of Lake Ladoga had failed.

In the Caucasus, Soviet dispatches pictured the triumphant Red armies as driving the Axis invaders back toward Rostov along a 100-mile front, capturing six more cities and towns, and moving up for the assault on the Nazi-held rail hub at Salsk, 110 miles southeast of Rostov.

On the lower Don front, masses of German reserves thrown into the critical struggle on the approaches to Rostov were making their weight felt, but a Soviet war bulletin nevertheless reported the capture of four more towns and the defeat of a German tank assault after vicious fighting.

The Soviet midnight communique declared 2,000 Germans were killed and 40 tanks destroyed in the lower Don region as the Nazis attacked with reckless fury in an attempt to halt the Red army steamroller.

On the central (Moscow) front, the Russians said German shock troops again counter-attacked northwest of Velikie Luki, 90 miles from the Latvian frontier, but withdrew after a day of costly battle.

In North Africa, British headquarters reported Allied bombers attacked the big Axis-held base at Tripoli, pounded the Libyan port of Homs, and raided Axis bases in Crete, Sicily and Lampedusa island.

Sandstorms swirled over the desert battlefield, where Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army still marked time about 180 miles east of Tripoli.

In the western air war, Britain's big home-based bombers returned to the assault on German war foundries in the Ruhr valley last night—the seventh attack there in 10 nights. Only one RAF plane was listed as missing.

Two German raiders countered with a dawn attack on an English southeast coastal town, bombing and machine-gunning the area. Dispatches said a number of persons were killed and many injured in the raid.

NAZIS APPEAL

STOCKHOLM — (U.P.) — The Nazis, facing increased demands on their manpower by developments on the Russian and Mediterranean fronts, have appealed to Spanish Generalissimo Francisco Franco to aid the Axis, German newspaper reports revealed today.

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt reminded Franco of his promise a year ago "to mobilize 3,000,000 men against the European arch-enemy if it should prove necessary."

luxurious French chateau near Tours.

Several months later he gained further notoriety when he assumed charge of arrangements for a visit which the Windsors contemplated making to the United States. Announced purpose of the visit was to enable the duke to study American industrial methods.

American labor organizations, which long had regarded Bedaux as an arch enemy, raised such an outcry against him as sponsor of the trip, and against Windsor for being identified with him, that the visit was called off.

Bedaux ins known to possess a thorough knowledge of French North Africa, having made an extended study of the desert some years ago in search of mineral resources. In 1941, he drafted a program for speeding up construction of the French trans-Saharan railway. He also served in the French Foreign Legion during the last war.

SERVE 125

Red Cross Workers Get Taste of Emergency Tasks.

Mansfield Red Cross canteen volunteers had their first workout in feeding a large number of persons today when they prepared and served a noon meal to 125 office and industrial workers at the Tappan Stove company for practical demonstration purposes.

Despite the cold weather, the women worked out doors peeling potatoes an dturnips for the beef-vegetable stew and they kept warm by taking turns inside the Red Cross mobile canteen unit brought here from Columbus to aid in the demonstration. They wore their new blue uniforms for the first time.

Mrs. A. C. Tuttle, a county canteen instructor, superintended the meal preparations today. Mrs. W. B. Ford, county canteen chairman, will head operations Thursday when another contingent of canteen workers serves a similar meal to 100 employes at the Ohio Brass company.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 13, 1943.

Optimistic note: The spring seed catalogs are being distributed, just as in other years.

It is said that even the people in North Africa do not understand the local political situation—but why go to North Africa to find such confusion?

Suggestion: This would be a year to make more people realize that better potatoes can be raised in Richland county than can be shipped in from Idaho or Maine.

Civilian Insubordination

MANY things are necessary to the national war effort aside from military action. One of these is the mining of coal. As a result of what is called a "wildcat strike" by 19,000 anthracite coal miners in Pennsylvania a serious shortage of coal is being experienced in eastern states in which severe fuel oil restrictions are already operative.

Whatever may be said about national unity and about the "awareness" of all Americans that the nation is at war, the action of these striking miners indicates that they have little idea of the part they are expected to play in winning the war.

Their union did not authorize this strike and government agencies have ordered the men to return to work—but without satisfactory results. It now becomes a matter of possible government seizure and operation of the mines under military authority, in order to remove what is termed "a threat to the safety of the nation."

The strike was started two weeks ago because of objection by the workers to 50-cents a month increase in union dues but has since developed into demands for $2 a day wage boost.

Regardless of the merits of either contention, the fact remains that these strikers are acting in a way that, if permitted to continue and grow, would spell disaster for this country, not only in carrying on the war but also in depriving millions of people of an essential of life.

Military insubordination is recognized as something that must be severely dealt with—civilian insubordination in time of war is no less reprehensible, nor should it be more lightly treated.

Sales Tax Recommendations

RECOMMENDATION by Governor Bricker that the state sales tax be removed from food served in hotels and restaurants is a belated call for action that should have been taken at the same time the tax was taken off of foods bought for home use.

Food purchased in hotels and restaurants is no less essential than other foodstuffs and a tax penalty against patrons of such eating places at no time seemed fair.

The governor also recommended that the sales tax be removed from "prescription medicines," but just why this should not apply with equal force to proprietary medicines is not entirely clear, as all are intended to serve remedial purposes.

If, as now seems apparent, there is a sufficient state surplus to warrant the legislature in following the governor's recommendations in removing the sales tax from some additional items, the possibility of reducing the tax from 3 per cent to 2 per cent may also be worthy of consideration.

Another Salary Increase Asked

REQUEST for salary and wage increases by teachers and all employes of Mansfield's public school system reflects a general trend along the line of organized effort to secure pay raises in all branches of public employment.

This request for another advance in teachers' salaries follows within a few months an increase granted last fall, and also comes close on the heels of an announcement that the public schools' operating budget for this year has been placed at $642,684, an increase of $44,147 over last year's operating costs.

The increase is requested, it is stated, "on the basis of the board of education's capacity to pay," but it should not be overlooked that it is the taxpayers, and their capacity to pay, that is the real point at issue and that the board of education merely represents the taxpayers in operating the public school system.

An estimate places the approximate added cost of a 15 per cent increase for teachers and other school employes at $70,000 over the 1942 appropriation of $461,697 for salaries of school employes.

Granted that competent school teachers have probably never been paid "what they are worth," the question arises as to the extent to which taxpayers can go in meeting increased costs of municipal government and school operations and at the same time carry the heavy wartime tax load imposed by the federal government.

Mansfield is fortunate in having a board of education personnel that can be depended upon to give this subject thoughtful and intelligent consideration in advance of decision.

Team Work Needed To Win War

OPENING of the new congress, with appearance of many new faces and the numerical gains of the minority party, gives no cheer to enemies of this country. There is no evidence of weakness, no defeatism, no change of war policy. And fortunately for everybody, there has been, so far and on both sides, very little evidence of partisan politics. The president in his address to congress obviously sought to conciliate the opposition, and the latter seemed to meet the gesture half way. It is recognized all around that there is a tremendous job to do, and that both sides have their parts to play in doing it.

If this spirit of co-operation can be maintained, it will be the equivalent of victories by land and sea. Political team work for the war job is the first requisite of success. There may be, and there should be, criticism of war policies and procedures which legislators honestly believe are wrong. But much depends on the spirit and method of such critisism. Needless wrath, ill will and bad manners among legislators and executives should be out for the duration.

Comment by Boston Globe: "The deaths, almost simultaneously, of President Lowell, Dr. Carver, Dr. Crile and Nikola Telsa—all of them aged men—makes one wonder what quality in the latter half of the 19th century caused genius so to blossom.

It's not entirely clear "what's cooking" in Russia, but everybody around here hopes it's Hitler's goose.

Different Temper On Capitol Hill

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The senate is rather tame, in comparison with the house of representatives, as congress gets into action.

That's because the last election didn't upset the balance as much in the upper as in the lower legislative chamber. Naturally it didn't, since the representatives are voted on all at a clatter and the senators only one-third at a time.

Consequently it is not possible to transform the latter group's complexion as rapidly as the former's.

Nevertheless, the senate's considerably modified, too.

There have been quite a few changes in seats.

Furthermore, a goodly number of holdovers were badly scared by the defeat of representatorial candidates in their respective states. They're apprehensive of similar fates of their own next time or the time afterward.

Leaderships reflect the tendency.

Charles L. McNary of Oregon is head of a solid Republican bloc. It isn't exclusively Republican, either. Charlie can count on some Democratic ballots.

Barkley A Figurehead.

On the Democratic side, Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky ("Dean Alben," as President Roosevelt called him) nominally continues to boss the job. That, however, is because the anti-New Deal Democrats didn't deem it judicious to toss him overboard at the present juncture—not from any consideration for him personally, or for the New Deal, but in their own interest.

Except with the badly disorganized New Deal element, Alben has no more authority than a Jack Snipe.

The actual leadership of the Democratic faction is in the hands of Senators Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, and Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

How Senator Wheeler happened to be included in this mixture is queer. All the rest of them are ultra-conservatives. Burton's a radical. He isn't for the New Deal, though—says it's dictatorial; not democratic.

(Don't let anybody make the mistake of assuming that a single one of this aggregation is otherwise than pro all-out war. That isn't the subject that they disagree on with the administration.)

There's another peculiar thing.

The National Federation of Federal Employes raises the yell that the government is over-hiring workers. It's a trade union in effect. Who's expect that a trade union would holler that it's being overly patronized—that it's getting too much money?

Still, Luther C. Steward, it's president, says so.

He blames administration incompetency.

He undoubtedly is the country's most competent authority on the subject.

As well as being mis-managed, it's downright crooked, according to his account.

Two Million Too Many.

Luther's story is that in three years we've increased our administrative force from about a million to nearly three million administrative workers and he estimates that a large proportion of the extra two millions are largely superfluous. They're not all men; they're partly girls. Nevertheless they're expensive.

The idea is—if you want a job, you can get it from the government.

The official explanation is that it has been "forced to expand personnel."

Phooey—"forced to—!" It's been forced not to.

We Made the Star

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FUNNY little recollection from Christmas day. Good enough, however, to carry on through the year.

You know how Christmases usually are. Not the sparkly, magazine version with everyone frolicking 'round and everything spic 'n' span. But the real McCoy with the place like a madhouse . . . turkey burning . . . important packages still unsent . . . the whole gang fit for murder.

Well, our Christmas followed the usual pattern. Everyone down with flu. Everything unfinished. Floor unswept. Tree untrimmed. Nobody could find the old box of decorations. Nothing left in the stores and a thundering storm blocking the road. Darn—oh, double darn! Why hadn't someone dropped Christmas out of the calendar just for one year?

General grouch. Then, as usual, we begin to relent. After all, Christmas was a pretty swell time. It went back through so many years — years when that sparkly star-topped tree shone through many a dark hour. And now there wasn't even a spangle on it, much less a star. Somehow we began to feel a little ashamed.

Then the idea struck us all at once. What if a War—plus-flu-plus-storm had gummed things up—couldn't we make our own star?

We could. We did. A foundation cut from a shoe box, covered with a scrap of ancient silver paper. But someone found a length of tinsel cord to bind the edge and an old blouse yielded up its jewels to make a glowing heart.

Out of the scraps and waste of our present life, we had made a star to glow in our dark, sweet cedar.

Well, hadn't all the real and best stars been made that way? Weren't the stars on our flag made that way? Something you buy in a store, that wasn't a real star. That didn't light your way. It was the beauty you discovered for yourself that shone over any desert.

You might have acres of sapphire midnight, with special decorations from Tiffany. But you wouldn't have a star unless it burned in your own heart.

Courage and faith, patience and laughter — these were the things that made the real and lasting stars. And those stars were burning all over America last Christmas night. Yes, there was a war and a dim-out. And butter and coffee and sugar was rationed. But those who in spite of all their wealth and power had never seen a star before, saw it then — felt it glowing in their hearts.

IT WAS THE STARRIEST CHRISTMAS AMERICA HAS EVER KNOWN!

Timely Editorial

More War—Less Crime.

A report from London is a challenge to psychologists. The British government announced that in 1942 decline of crime in London has beaten all previous records. Especially interesting is the statement of the London Metropolitan Police that big, war news, good or bad, is always followed by a big drop in crime.

It is up to the psychologists to decide as to whether great joy and deep depression curb crime because they consume the energy which otherwise would be free for criminal acts, or whether the primitive urge for sensation is so thoroughly stilled by the war that many people no longer need excitement which they would have found in their own crime.

Whatever psychologists may decide, believers in simple explanations may well feel that the good news from London also is in part a tribute to democracy. We like to think that a self-governing country is disciplined in an emergency.—Boston Globe.

Everyday Poem

Beyond Rebuilding.

Past can never be rebuilt,
Past cannot be changed;
Look to future, wishes there,
These might be arranged.

Why go back to cold regrets,
Dream of "otherwise"?
Better far to plan and dream
Future gay surprise.

Let the past go; take your stand
At the future's door;
Offer to your mind the best
It might have in store.

Home Fronts and Global Strategy

Hoover Urges American Aid to People of Vanquished Nations

—By HERBERT HOOVER

(This is the third in a series of six articles by Mr. Hoover.)

JAPAN is an entirely different problem from the European Axis. Her home front at this time is the reverse of the European home fronts, for her civil population is very well supplied with necessities and generally in high spirits. She is still in the ascendant stages of total war.

Japan also differs from our European enemies on the military front. The European Axis is depending mainly upon land war for victory. Japan's ultimate destiny depends mainly upon sea warfare. Germany's conquests are over land, and Japan's are basically conquests over sea.

Japan with Manchuria is normally about self-supporting as to food. Her conquests have given her far more rubber, oil, tin, lead, zinc, copper and hardening metals, rice, and vegetable oils than she needs. She has a possible shortage in iron. Her people are far better off in standard of living than before Pearl Harbor.

Japan's Weakness.

The spirit of her people, depressed during some years by costly and inconclusive fighting in Asia, has been given a fresh impulse by apparent victory over the white races.

Her great weakness is that all her conquests are like beads on a string. And the string is her merchant marine and its air and naval protection. Through that alone can she, for the present, maintain her garrisons and her many supplies to support the home front. If that merchant ship lifeline should be cut by adequately based airplanes, all the southern arms of the octopus would be paralyzed.

The Japanese airplane, ship and tank output is not one-fourth what we can produce. Her ships, planes and men are under steady attrition from the British and ourselves. With every growth of our air and sea power and our advancing bases, this destruction becomes more severe.

Merchant shipping is the Achilles' heel of her "co-prosperity order" in Asia. And if her sea transport be steadily crippled, she will start degeneration in munitions and raw materials on the home front.

The Home Fronts In Occupied Democracies.

The Axis armies have over-run twelve independent democratic countries and part of Russia. Over 200,000,000 people have been ravished, their men murdered, their women and children starved. Many of these countries have always lived partly upon food and feed for their animals imported from overseas.

As the result of the blockade, they have had to slaughter their animals down to those that could be fed. Their ground crops are decreasing. Their fertilizers have greatly diminished. Their agricultural machinery is run down. Each winter the food is less and less. Theirs is not food shortage. They are starving.

The "normal" ration of meats and fats combined in these countries ranges from two to four pounds per month. Compare this with the American consumption rate of about 20 pounds per month. I have a survey of a number of Belgian industrial areas which shows that 35 per cent of the children are suffering from scurvy, rickets and tuberculosis. Most of the city schools are closed because the children are too weak to do their work. The mortality is appalling. The same stories come from other cities.

Greeks Being Helped.

During the last eighteen months I have repeatedly insisted that the blockade should be opened to allow an experiment in supplies for their soup kitchens which feed the women, children and unemployed men. I propose that the experiment should be conducted by the neutral governments of Europe after agreements with the Germans that both the imports and the native food should be unmolested and that the whole should be supervised by agents of these neutral nations.

Six months ago, under the pressures of the Turkish, Swedish and Swiss governments, this plan was adopted for Greece. Greek lives are being saved, although the amounts are insufficient. Our state department now reports that the Germans do not benefit and our government encourages support to the Greek committee. The arguments against my proposals have now proved to be wrong by the Greek experiment.

Is there now any reason why the Swedes and Swiss should not be allowed also to save the children in Belgium, Holland, Norway and Poland? They are willing to undertake it; they have ships that cannot be placed in Allied war service. They can get food in South America. Most of the invaded countries have financial resources in the hands of their exiled governments to pay for this food.

Food Needed Now.

The Germans can save their people from famine by surrender. These people are helpless.

Food for the small democracies has a bearing on the whole future of freedom. These people are the only centers in Europe of fidelity to democracy. It is not a pleasant prospect if they are to bring up a generation of children stunted in body and embittered in mind. Nor are promises of food after the war of much avail to people in the cemeteries.

Hitherto this has been considered a problem for British decision. But, it is now also an American responsibility. And I dislike to contemplate the verdict of history upon our default in that prime foundation of Christianity—compassion.

Tomorrow: "A Survey of the Allied Home Fronts."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON —The 78th Congress is full of new and interesting personalities.

To mention only a few, there is Homer Ferguson — Michigan's "one-man grand jury," a sort of elderly Racket-Buster Thomas E. Dewey—who has vowed to become the senate's chief "why-man." And Albert W. Hawkes, who led New Jersey Republicans in a general defeat for Democratic "Boss" Hague's machine.

There's Sen. Kenneth Wherry, of Nebraska, who will never have to do another blessed thing to go down in history. He's the man who defeated the ancient and venerable George W. Norris. There's ex-Gov. C. Douglas Buck of Delaware; and former Governors George Wilson of Iowa and Harlan Bushfield of South Dakota, all of whom will serve in the senate.

On the House side there are Clare Boothe Luce, of Connecticut, the No. 1 glamour-lady in the new congress; James M. Curley, who has been away for awhile, part of which he spent being governor of Massachusetts; F. L. Sundstrom, whom Indiana U. remembers as one of its great all-American football stars, but who comes to the House from New Jersey as a Republican all-star; and LaVern Dilweg, of Wisconsin, who not only was rated all-American at Marquette, but went on to play pro-football with the then champion Green Bay Packers.

ALSO on the athletic side is Arkansas' new Rep. J. W. Fulbright, who not only played football at the University of Arkansas, but as a Rhodes scholar, was a member of the Oxford-Cambridge Lacrosse team which 17 years ago came to this country to meet handpicked teams from the American universities.

From Wyoming, there is one-time Welsh immigrant Edward Robinson, whose first job in the United States was "working on the railroad" at $1.50 a week.

THE list is endless but it wouldn't be complete if we didn't mention again young Will Rogers, jr., whose father, the great cowboy humorist, almost once got into politics because the "Will Rogers-For-President" campaign, started in fun, became a write-in threat.

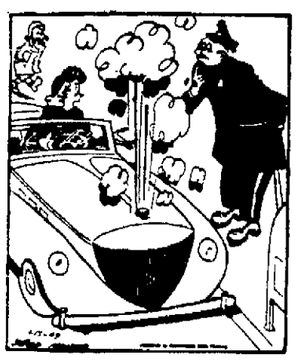
When young Will came to town the other day to take over his job of representing the sixteenth congressional district in California (Santa Monica, Hollywood, etc.) he hadn't even had time to change his lieutenant's uniform for civies.

At election time, Rogers was in camp in Texas. He not only is the only member of the new congress who has served in this war as a private but is reported to be the only new member who didn't make a campaign speech or even visit his district during the pre-election period.

Daily Bible Thought

I am a debtor both to the Greeks and to the Barbarians, both to the wise and to the unwise.—Romans 1:14.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT



"I don't know what it is . . . it only happens on real cold days."

Dave Boone Says:

ED FLYNN may not rate all the knocking he's getting, but just the same anybody who listens to the high-sounding radio speeches from many quarters on idealism, better moral climates, high standards of government and all that stuff, and then sees a Bronx political boss selected to be American minister to a war-torn area in a world war must feel pretty befuddled.

* * *

If the average citizen can reconcile the assorted radio talks about putting our own special brand of sweetness and light on tap for all the peoples of the earth with the picking out of a politician to be roving ambassador of the United States he can do more than I can.

* * *

I hope any more proposals to supervise all the things to be taught in the schools of Europe and Asia (like Mr. Wallace has in mind), so that young minds will be kept on a high level, don't cause too much giggling.

* * *

Even admitting that Mr. Flynn is above reproach, a fine citizen, a smear victim in that paving block scandal and as clean a man as Tammany ever produced, it's hard to think of him as top man on the list of eligibles for the great job he has been given.

* * *

Shucks, maybe we pay too much attention to radio speeches anyhow! More and more comedy is coming over the air every day and maybe we just don't know what's supposed to be a gag and what ain't.

A Farmer's Diary

After Five Years

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WITH this entry, A Farmer's Diary starts its sixth year. Five years ago, with fear and trembling, I entered the office of our home town editor with the strange proposition that daily living on an Ohio farm was news worth while reporting to the newspapers.

I knew that most newspapers are written by city people with specialized training. I didn't know any editors. I went more than half way to become acquainted with them—and it was worth it. I suppose I realized that I "was rushing in where angels fear to tread," but sometimes it takes a man who is a fool to start something. I was a country upstart who loved the land and the farmer folk. I thought they ought to be represented, interpreted and justly honored in the daily news.

For five years this column has been an outlet and a source of enjoyment to me, personally. I can truthfully say that I have never written an article without enjoying the writing of it. My wife, who deciphers my scrawl, interprets my spelling, and reduces the whole to a cleanly typed sheet, cannot say as much. But then, my wife is, in a quiet way, ambitious . . . that is, she hopes to see me make a farmer out of myself some day and be a comfortable, competent, retired so-and-so. There'll be four sons to do the heavy work, a lovely farm home with a competent hired girl, a few fat cattle, a long row of bee hives.

(Nice day dream — wait around and see.)

A man cannot write every day and get responses that prove people read his stuff, without it does something to him. It would be a poor author, indeed, who did not feel deeply humble in the knowledge that his own personal philosophy of living had blessed someone else. I am profoundly grateful to those of you who have written me, whether to praise, or to contribute, or give constructive criticism.

This column will never be all written. Its sources are as wide as horizons are; as varied as all outdoors; as moving and as poignant as life itself. I want it to grow, I want to know the men who are learning things about nature's laws — I want to see, first hand, many of the wonders I have only read about. Maybe I am too visionary.

Agriculture and its sister subject, Conservation, are slowly but surely moving into the center of public thought. This war is getting us down to the verities of living. We are each just a part of the earth, after all—and we ENJOY this struggle that is our life in proportion as we succeed in the fight for it. Stripped of hokum and big words, the fate of humanity is just where it has always been—in the hands of the tillers of the soil. Upon their efforts depends the enduring power of our civilzation.

(Editor's Note: As a reader who has enjoyed Mr. Byers' diary, why not write and tell him so? He will also appreciate any suggestion you may offer. Address: Calvin A. Byers, Bellville, Ohio.)
